

Enjoy Downtown Silver City!

SILVER CITY sprang to life during the summer of 1870. The discovery of silver brought thousands of miners, and merchants followed in their footsteps. The town's founders decided Silver City would be "built to last." In 1880, an ordinance was passed requiring masonry construction for new buildings in the city limits. This left behind a wealth of solid commercial buildings, brick Victorian homes, and adobe structures.

A series of devastating floods between 1890 and 1910 washed away the original Main Street and all but one of its handsome brick buildings. The stately Warren house by the Market Street pedestrian bridge is the sole survivor. What used to be Main Street is now known as the Big Ditch Park, and lies some 55 feet below grade. It was named after the Panama Canal, and is the watercourse for San Vicente Creek.

The Silver City Visitor Center and Big Ditch Park provide gateways into Historic Downtown for both visitors and residents. Award-winning Silver City MainStreet Project has provided comprehensive downtown revitalization services since 1985. This vibrant district has many entities including retail and service businesses, art studios, government services, nonprofits, churches, and schools.
